Scholastic Book Fair

We are having our Dino Mite Book Fair April 19– April 23.

This is a perfect opportunity to pick up some great summer reading for your child at a fabulous price!

Every book purchased gives books back to the center for our classroom libraries.

I “Mustache” You to Complete Your Survey!

We appreciate all your feedback and comments in our PAR surveys.

As always, your feedback is very valuable and at any time please do not hesitate to see me with any questions or concerns!

If you have already completed the survey, fill out a mustache to be entered into our drawing.

Thank you for all of your continued support!

The Egg Hunt was successful and the children really enjoyed themselves thanks to all of your donations.

Earth Day 2021

In honor of Earth Day, we will be celebrating on Thursday, April 22nd. Each class will discuss the importance of protecting our planet.

We will be giving back to our planet by releasing ladybugs into the environment.

We pledge to continue doing our part even after Earth Day is over.

On this day, please wear Red and Black or dress like a ladybug in honor of our ladybug release event!

The 6 A's of Good Parenting

By: Family First Staff

Parenting is all about relating. The better our relationship with our children, the better our chances at effective parenting. Youth expert Josh McDowell believes there are six factors that play into good parenting. He calls them the 6 A's.

Affirmation

When we affirm a child's feelings it gives them a sense of authenticity.

Have you ever heard the old saying, "Laugh with those who are happy and cry with those who are sad?" It means that when our child is sharing his feelings or opinions, they want us to listen and affirm them.

It would go something like this. Your son comes home and says, "Man! My math teacher made me so mad today, he said I wasn't trying." Well, your instinct might be to try to downplay the situation like this, "Oh son, he probably didn't mean anything by it. Let it go." Or you might say — before you even address his feelings — "Now son, were you trying? Maybe he had a point." Or, "You're a big boy now, you can't get so upset about things." Those are all attempts to control or fix the situation. Instead try, "Son, I am so sorry that happened. How do you feel about it now?" Even when we don't agree with our children, we can still affirm them as individuals.

Acceptance

When you give unconditional acceptance you give a child a sense of security. This basically comes down to one principle that must be conveyed to our children: I don't love you because of what you do or achieve, I love you because you're my child.

Our love and affection should not be based on grades, behavior or achievements.

Appreciation

When we express appreciation, it gives a child a sense of significance.

Appreciation is one of the most powerful motivations for right behavior. So, the more we "catch" our children doing things right, and we express our appreciation, the more motivated they will be to behave better.

Availability

When we are available to our children it gives them a sense of importance.

We can say all we want about how important our children are to us. But if we're not giving them our time, our words will ring hollow. Our children should come before our TV-watching, our hobbies and our desire to make money.

Children spell love – T-I-M-E.

Affection

When we show our children affection it gives them a sense of lovability.

All children want to feel like they are lovable. Josh McDowell says not only that, but every child is going to prove they are lovable.

If they don't get love from you, they will get it somewhere else.

Accountability

When we hold children accountable it gives them a sense of responsibility and self-control.

Children need the disciplines of responsibility and self-control to function successfully in life. As parents, we must create a context for rules and boundaries. Once those guidelines are set, we must be consistent in enforcing them.

Spring has Sprung!

Wooden Spoon Bouquet

While it may be a while before your real flower garden blooms into a rainbow of spring colors, you can round up a bouquet of these bright-hued wooden perennials to liven up a countertop or coffee table in no time.

WHAT YOU NEED

- Long-handled wooden spoons
- Acrylic or tempera paint
- Paintbrush
- Mug
- Assorted flat wooden craft shapes (sold by the bagful at most craft stores)
- Wood glue
- Wooden beads (colored or plain)

STEP ONE: Have your kids paint the wooden spoon handles green and stand them stem-end up in a mug to dry.

STEP TWO: For petals, glue flat wooden craft shapes to the bowl of each spoon, as pictured (this step works best if you lay the spoons on a flat surface).

STEP THREE: Once the glue is completely dry (see manufacturer's directions), your kids can paint the flowers (both front and back) and stand them in a mug to dry.

STEP FOUR: Lastly, glue a cluster of wooden beads in the center of each flower.

FRUIT SALAD! YUMMY! YUMMY!

- 6 bananas, sliced
- 6 apples, diced
- 1 bunch seedless grapes, halved
- 2 small cans mandarin oranges, drained
- 1 small can pineapple tidbits, drained
- 1 small maraschino cherries and juice (halved)
- 1/2 cup walnuts, chopped
- 1 pint sour cream
